My Parents have about 900 acres in the Texas Hill Country. For years we have tried to supplement feed our whitetail with little or no luck. Over the past five years we have tried various protein pellets and planted several food plots that never seemed to grow because the rains did not come at the right times to achieve a successful amount of growth to sustain our deer population.

The deer seemed to like the protein, but as we quickly learned the deer wasted more protein than they actually consumed because of the inefficiency of protein feeders to dispense protein. We also became aware that we were feeding as many raccoons as we were deer. Since we were supplemental feeding that many raccoons we could not justify the cost of protein to increase our overall trophy quality of our deer herd. This is until we discovered Chaffhaye.

Chaffhaye is the best supplemental food source for our deer herd. Period. Our bucks have shown a significant increase in antler and body size. In the past two years we have shot some of the biggest bucks we have ever seen on our ranch. The unique thing about Chaffhaye is that raccoons do not eat it and deer end up consuming ever bit of the product. This means that waste is pretty much eliminated thus making this a more reliable and cost efficient supplemental food source. I have witnessed on several occasions, that deer will actually pass up corn in order to consume Chaffhaye. This is amazing because before Chaffhaye deer would actually pass up protein pellets to eat corn. An additional benefit we have experienced is an increase in fawn survival. We believe the benefits of Chaffhaye have helped our doe population become healthier thus improving the fawn survival rate during the spring, when fawns are born, due to a better quality milk supply by the mother doe.

We have been seeing more deer with heavier, darker antlers, and healthier deer overall.

We have tried other protein products, but nothing has compared to Chaffhaye. We tried planting food plots, but it was either too wet or too dry. We have tried protein pellets using feeders, but they only seemed to make the raccoons bigger. In all, we've probably tried a dozen other products, but nothing compares to Chaffhaye.

Thanks!
